Dear Ms. Launer:

We are in receipt of your "threat of suit" letter dated November 21, 2014.

We dispute your (company's) claim in its entirety, for reasons already documented in our prior correspondence.

We dispute your presentation of the procedures to date, as well, especially the characterization that we've asserted any administrative activity by any label, e.g., a "petition." Your people have sent bogus demand letters, and we've responded to each of them, disputing the claims throughout. There's been no administrative activity or participation from our side. Your unilateral misconstruction of that doesn't change any of the relevant facts. We've never consented to any commercial nexus, including anything about any arbitration by anyone, especially by your company, of your (company's) bogus claims.

All of this has been addressed in our prior correspondence. Obviously, we'll be sending no check to anyone in response to your continued mail fraud conspiracy.

If DOJ thinks your bluff is worth getting them sued as well, we look forward to showing you people, very formally and publicly, the application side of "federal" means "federal," as in "by agreement." You have no commercial nexus to enforce, and your (company's) continued intent to compel one, as your letter proves, is a conspiracy now involving you to harass us and to intimidate us for and in retaliation of our very well documented assertion of our "right not to contract." If you carry out your threat, be sure your malpractice insurance is paid.

Sincerely,

/s/ Walter Olenick
